DESERT TILLMAN RANCH IN MEXICO FOR VERA CRUZ

Conditions So Alarming that Manager Has Left Guard and Taken Family to Protected Port

URGES DECISIVE ACTION BY U. S.

Herman Tillman Who Recently Returned from Mexico Says Mexicans Think We Fear Them

MUST PRESERVE OUR PRESTIGE

At Present He Says the Mexicans Have Great Deal More Respect for British and Germans

Alarmed by the conditions which now prevail in Mexico, J. A. Mahoney, Chicago, the manager of the ranch, belonging to Herman Tillman, local furniture dealer, has placed a guard over the property and taken his wife and children to join the hundreds of refugees now awaiting passage to the north from Vera Cruz. Although the Tillman ranch is on the west coast—on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, near Salina Cruz—where there has been little trouble, circumstances appeared so threatening that the ranch manager feared to leave his family in the interior.

This statement was made yesterday by Mr. Tillman, while discussing the situation in Mexico with a Tribune reporter.

Must Depose Huerta

"There's nothing to do now but to go on through. We must enforce the demands made by the United States, and depose Huerta or lose what- ever prestige we have left."

That is the way the Mexican situation appeals to Mr. Tillman. He returned just recently from a visit to his ranch.

Mr. Tillman is outspoken in his criticism of the dilatory policy adopted by the United States administration.

"They think we are afraid of them," he said. "They have more respect, much more, for the English or the Germans. Two years ago a gang of bandits under J. Gomez (who was later killed in Lucane Antonio) came into the district where my ranch is situated, and the only thing that prevented them from carrying out their threat to burn my ranch buildings was the fact that the property was owned by British subjects. They went away in a hurry, then."

"The trouble lies with the people. They are ignorant, childish, and absolutely without knowledge of the affairs of their country. When the Madero election was held ballots were sent to my ranch for the peons. The foreman gave them the tickets, and told them they could lay off to vote. Their spokesman answered:

"You know how we want to vote. You go and vote for us."

People Not Interested

"That expresses the whole situation. They cannot have a legal, fair election in Mexico. The people are not interested, and most of them are unable to read or write."

Asked about the personal habits of Huerta, Mr. Tillman said that he took a good sized sprinkling of salt with printed stories of the dictator's drunkenness.

"He is not considered to be a drunkard in Mexico City," he said. "It is that because Mexican standards are lower than in the United States."

"No," replied Mr. Tillman. "The standards of good conduct among Mexicans are the same as ours."

Mr. Tillman believes that Huerta was the logical man to rule Mexico. "Rule" is just the word, too, according to Mr. Tillman's expressed belief. It is impossible to govern Mexico in any other way than with force, he says.

"If the United States had recognized Huerta, there would be quiet in Mexico today," he said. "With the start he had, he could easily have put down the insurrection of Carranza in the north. But now, I doubt that Huerta could pacify Mexico. The rebels have gained too much headway and are too strong for him, I believe."

Mr. Tillman refused to prophesy who would be the next president of Mexico. He said, however, that if the election were a popular election, as we understand the term, Carranza might be chosen, indicating that he believed Carranza was well liked by the Mexican voting population, especially in the north.

De LaBarra, who has the good will of our government, is a strong man, but he is the candidate of the church and the anti-church faction is fighting him.

Mr. Tillman recounted, as illustrating the attitude of the United States administration toward her citizens in Mexico, an experience of his with Henry Lane Wilson, ambassador to Mexico City, who was recalled about a year ago.

"Two years ago, when the trouble

SIX GENERATIONS SIT AT THE TABLE AT 102d BIRTHDAY OBSERVANCE

M'GREGOR, Iowa, May 12.—Six generations sat at a table together yesterday in Wyalusing, Wisconsin, on the occasion of the one hundred and second birthday of Mrs. Lydia Ault Shrake. Had it been possible for all Mrs. Shrake's living descendants to be present, covers for one hundred and fifty-eight would have been required. She is the mother of four aged children; the grandmother of thirty-two near aged grandchildren; the great grandmother of eighty-five middle aged great grandchildren; the great, great grandmother of thirty young men and women, great, great grandchildren; and the great, great, great grandmother of six infant great, great, great grandchildren.

The remarkable family is the fruit of two marriages; one consummated eighty-four years ago when Mrs. Shrake was eighteen years old; the other in 1843. Ten children were born of the two unions. Four of them are still living. The first husband was a veteran of the War of 1812; the second served in the Mexican war. Five sons and two sons-in-law fought in the Union army in the War of the Rebellion. Despite her one hundred and two years, Mrs. Shrake is able to do some of the housework in the family of her son with whom she has lived since the death of her second husband in 1861. She also helps tend the garden and now and then croons her favorite great, great, great grandchild to sleep. Her mental faculties are still clear and her memory excellent.

BALD JACK ROSE REPEATS TALE OF ROSENTHAL CASE

Go-Between for Becker Again Describes How the Former Police Lieutenant Arranged Murder

FEARED ANGER OF THE GAMBLER

He and Becker Had Had a Quarrel Over Division of Profits and Rosenthal Went to Whitman

PROMISED FREEDOM FOR KILLING

Big Jack Zelig Was Promised Escape from Fourteen Year Term if He Would Arrange Deal

NEW YORK, May 12.—"Bald Jack" Rose, star witness for the state, in its efforts to send Charles Becker, former police lieutenant, to the electric chair for plotting the murder of Gambler Herman Rosenthal, took the stand today shortly before noon.

Bald as an egg, Rose presented a peculiar picture. Heavy rings circled his dark eyes as he leaned forward in the witness chair answering in a low voice the questions preliminary to the whole disclosure of what was Becker's murder plot.

Becker leaned forward in his chair when Rose took the stand, and showed as the lines deepened in his face that he realized the climax of his case was near.

Told of Snares

Led by District Attorney Whitman, Rose began the original story of the negotiations with Becker and explained why, he said, the then czar of the tenderloin wanted Rosenthal killed, because his "snares" to Whitman lessened Becker's safety. Immediately before Rose took the stand, William Shapiro, driver of the gray "murder car," from which the four gunmen leaped to kill Rosenthal, told his story. Briefly he went over the facts of the tragedy. His most important testimony, however, related to a conversation between the four gunmen in his car as they neared the scene of the murder.

Shapiro testified:

"I heard one of the boys say, I think Whitey Lewis, these words: 'Have the chauffeur turn his car around and wait. The cops are all fixed. Becker fixed 'em. Everything is all right.'"

Martin T. Manton, Becker's chief counsel, fought hard against the introduction of Becker's name. His efforts were of no avail. Justice Seabury allowed the witness' statement to go on record and Becker had lost his first point.

Shapiro said he waited about fifteen minutes with his car pointed east on Forty-third street. Suddenly he said he heard four shots and then the gunmen ran to the car and he put on high speed. He said he took them to the Cafe Boulevard, where they got out.

Rose, garbed in gray with a turn-over collar and black tie, was a curious figure. He detailed alleged "business deals" of Becker with Rosenthal, with a possible partnership between the police lieutenant and the gambler.

Whitman gave Rose a free hand. Only an occasional question turned Rose's steady flow of language into this or that detail of the murder conspiracy. The intricate dealings of Rose and Becker in their police graft, which Rose collected, were gone into at great length. Rose said Rosenthal's refusal of $500 to Becker as part of the profits of their gambling house precipitated the final break which ended in murder.

Pressed by accusations of complicity with gamblers Rose said, Becker asked him to see Rosenthal and ask

SILLIMAN STILL HELD PRISONER BY HUERTISTAS

Instead of Being Released He Is Still in Prison at Saltillo Says Brazilian Agent

HUERTA IGNORES ULTIMATUM

Unless Silliman Personally Reports His Safety Matter Will Be Taken Up with Mediators

BELIEVE HUERTA WILL STAY OUT

His Attitude Taken to Indicate that He Means to Withdraw from Mediation

WASHINGTON, May 12.—A telegram from the Brazilian minister in Mexico City assuring the state department that the release of Consul Silliman will soon be accomplished was made public at the state department today. The message was sent about ten o'clock last night and said that the order for Silliman's release had just been telegraphed to Saltillo and that the American consul would be delivered to the Brazilian embassy in Mexico City in response to demands made upon the Huerta government.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—United States Consul Silliman is still a prisoner at Saltillo, according to dispatches to the state department. The information came from Brazilian Minister Cordoba at Mexico City, who said he was making the strongest representations for Silliman's release, but had so far been unsuccessful.

The official declaration that Consul Silliman was still a prisoner was a severe shock to officials here. Secretary Bryan served what was in effect an ultimatum on Huerta demanding his immediate release last Friday. Through the French ambassadors here and in Mexico City and the French consul at Saltillo, it was made clear to Huerta and the federal commander at Saltillo that any outrage against Silliman would be severely punished. Immediately afterward Ambassador Jusserand was informed Silliman would be treated with courtesy and released, and early yesterday Consul Hanna had wired that he was free.

Expect Him to Withdraw

Quibbling and evasion by Huerta continue to threaten to force the United States to change its peaceful policy. His attitude in piling up petty protests with the mediators against the United States is regarded as indicating that he is not serious in his plans to participate in the mediation conference.

President Wilson, back from New York, plunged anew into the investigation of the Mexico City situation. He conferred with former Charge Nelson O'Shaughnessy and with Secretary Bryan. The cabinet also discussed the situation, especially the peculiar mix-up in the case of Consul Silliman at Saltillo.

Although the Brazilian minister at Mexico City has notified Bryan that Huerta has agreed to release Silliman and transfer him at once to the capital, the administration refuses to accept the word of the dictator. Unless Silliman personally reports his own safety within a reasonable time the United States will take the matter up with the mediators.

The mediators have as yet received no answer from Huerta as to whether he has accepted the explanation of the United States regarding the Lobos Island. Secretary Bryan was emphatic in declaring Admiral Badger was compelled to man the light as it had been darkened by its keepers who had fled.

Arms For Rebels Problem

The question of whether the constitutionalists would be permitted to import arms through Tampico should they capture that port is seriously troubling the administration. It is known that the rebel leaders have been gathering arms at Havana ready to ship across to the northern port. Seizure of the customs house there would immediately cut off the constitutionalists from their arms supply.

If the constitutionalists do not get arms they may not carry on their Mexico City campaign, as they are reported to have only enough ammunition for the Saltillo, San Luis Potosi and Tampico campaigns now in progress.

Three Brazilians, a Peruvian and a Chilean are held at Vera Cruz after being caught red handed sniping American bluejackets. The Brazilian ambassador has asked that they be protected and it is believed they will be ordered held without trial for the present.

Expect Quick Decision

That a comprehensive plan for settling the entire Mexican trouble will be proposed by the A. B. C. mediators was the opinion expressed by Secretary Bryan at today's cabinet meeting. It was agreed by the president and the cabinet that this plan

PAIR HERE SINCE '57 CELEBRATE SIXTIETH YEAR OF MARRIAGE

Mr. and Mrs. Melchior Volz, who came up the river to La Crosse in 1857

Mr. and Mrs. Melchior Volz, 124 North Eighth street, are today celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage. Five children, twenty-one grandchildren and one great-grandchild are present at the celebration.

Mr. Volz was born January 6, 1831, near Axhern, Baden-on-the-Rhine, Germany. He came to America in the spring of 1851, landing at New York after a month's trip on the ocean. He worked for a while in Louisville, Ky., before going to Ripley county, Indiana, where he met Miss Josephine Renner, who became his wife May 9, 1854.

Mrs. Volz was born June 24, 1838, on the old homestead of her parents in Ripley county, Indiana, which was acquired by the parents early in the century. Mr. and Mrs. Renner moving to Indiana from Pittsburgh, sailing down the Ohio river to Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Volz were married in the old St. Nicholas church in Ripley county, moving to Chicago soon after their marriage. Later, they moved to Iowa, and in a trip up the Mississippi in 1857, bound for St. Paul, Mr. Volz was so delighted by the location and the beauty of La Crosse that he landed here instead of continuing to St. Paul. That was May 7, 1857. Since that time La Crosse has been their home.

Twelve children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Volz, six of them dying in infancy, and one, William, dying twelve years ago, at the age of twenty years. The eldest, Rev. Joseph F. Volz of Marshfield, was born on the homestead in Indiana, the rest being natives of La Crosse. The children are: George S. and B. H. Volz of La Crosse, Mrs. Mary Guter of Minneapolis, John of Great Falls, Mont., and the Rev. Joseph F. Volz, pastor of St. John's Catholic church in Marshfield.

Mr. Volz is one of the pioneer members of St. Joseph's cathedral and the only surviving charter member of St. Joseph's Liebesbund.

Since 1875 Mr. and Mrs. Volz have lived on the property at 124 North Eighth street, which they bought from J. J. Hogan. Prior to that time they lived on State street, between Ninth and Tenth streets.

WOUNDED WOMAN CRISPETTES GIRL

Marie Karlos Was Marie Frank Kleinertz in Main Street Confectionery

Marie Karlos, nee Marie Robinson, the former La Crosse girl whose husband, George Karlos, seriously wounded her before shooting himself to death Monday, was a widow who left La Crosse about a year ago to be married to the man who attempted her murder.

Miss Robinson formerly worked for Frank Kleinertz when the latter was engaged in the manufacture of "Crispettes," a popcorn confection, in the basement of the Beck block, Sixth and Main streets.

Mr. Kleinertz verifies the story that the woman claims to have worked in a hospital in La Crosse, out of the local hospitals can identify her.

Karlos is a Greek. He never lived in La Crosse, but used to come to this city from St. Paul when he was courting the young woman.

Miss Robinson came here from St. Louis, where she was the issue of the marriage of a wealthy colored man and a white woman, although she showed no trace of her colored derivation. At one time she had apartments in the Tomlinson flats.

It is reported today that Miss Robinson cannot recover.

HE TREE OR SHE TREE IS PROBLEM

If It Was a He Tree Shaffer Can Recover, but if It Was a She Tree He Owes $133

QUESTION BOTHERS THE COURT

City Ordinance Forbids Female Cottonwoods; Man Sues for Loss in Chopping

The question of whether a certain tree which was cut down at the direction of Earle Scholl, was a female or male cottonwood tree, is occupying the attention of the circuit court, twelve jurors, fourteen witnesses, three lawyers and the two parties in dispute, this afternoon.

Scholl, a traveling man residing near Seventh and Vine streets, ordered a cottonwood tree, which was partly on his land and partly on the land of Henry M. Shaffer, cut down last December. Shaffer is now suing for damages.

Judge Higbee in discussing the matter with the attorneys said that if the tree was a female cottonwood tree the plaintiff could not recover for the loss of the tree as a shade tree, as a city ordinance prohibits female cottonwoods, but he might recover an amount equal to the value of his share of the wood derived from the tree, minus the expense of cutting.

According to Attorney Otto Bossard this would amount to a minus of $133, as Shaffer claims two-thirds of the tree was on his land.

Scholl gave all of the wood and $2 besides to a laborer for cutting the tree down.

HUERTA PREPARES FOR FLIGHT FROM CITY OF MEXICO

Delegates He Names to Represent Him Before Mediators Glad to Get Out of Capital

PLANS TO MAKE STAND AT PUEBLA

Will Fortify Himself and Stand Off Rebels Until Americans Come to His Rescue

THINK HE WILL WRECK CITY

Representatives Think He Will Go Down Like Sampson in Wreck of Government

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD. (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

VERA CRUZ, May 12.—So imminent is the fall of Mexico City that the three representatives of the government now on their way to Niagara Falls with their families, not only were secretly delighted to leave the dangers of the capital, but have planned to continue their journey to Europe after appearing before the A. B. C. mediators.

They know that Dictator Huerta has planned to make a last stand in Puebla, 150 miles toward Vera Cruz from the capital. There he can flee after the devastation of Mexico City. He expects to be able to hold out against the rebels until the American forces come and rescue.

To Wreck Government

The mediation delegates told their friends here that they had seen many signs that Huerta was prepared to fall, Samson-like, pushing the now tottering pillars of his government to their destruction.

This may be expected, it is said, within a few weeks, or forty days at the most. Then amid a carnival of looting, murder and the crashing of tumbling walls of public buildings, mined at the order of the dictator, the flimsy semblance of government maintained in Mexico City may come to an end.

But Huerta will not be eliminated. A precedent has been set as to the killing of Mexican presidents in the Madero assassination. If President Wilson should permit Huerta to be assassinated then he could not recognize the president who took office over the body of the dead dictator. Therefore Huerta will flee to Puebla and in that stronghold guard his life against the assault of the revolutionary hosts until the American army can come and get him.

Sends Supplies to Puebla

Arms and ammunition have been sent to Puebla in great quantities. It is well located for purposes of defense. In the state of Puebla, near Tlascala, in the mountain passes, and gorges, the dictator's small force of loyal men could stand off an army greatly outnumbering them long enough to permit the Americans to reach the scene.

General Huerta has given the peace

WANTS SOCIALISTS TO GIVE DAY'S PAY

CHICAGO, May 12.—Walter Lammers, secretary of the socialist party, recommended in his annual report submitted today to the national executive committee in session here, that every socialist contribute one day's wage to a fund for electing socialists to legislatures.

Membership paying dues in April was 104,581, the secretary said.

The party in the past year raised $16,880.48 for various funds, including those for strikes in Paterson, N. J., West Virginia, Michigan, Colorado and the revolt of the Irish laborers in Dublin, Ireland.

The executive committee decided to establish an official socialist newspaper, taking the Party Builder, the present organ, as a nucleus.

Resolutions were being prepared today, asking congress to prosecute the state officials and militia of Colorado for treason on the grounds of alleged insults to the flag.

R. C. McCaleb of La Crosse was chosen sergeant at arms of the executive committee's session, according to word received here today.

BOMBARD MAZATLAN CITY IS WELL FORTIFIED AND REBELS' ABILITY TO TAKE IT IS PROBLEMATIC

BY C. H. RAYMOND
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
ON BOARD U. S. S. CLEVELAND,
May 10.—(By Wireless to San Diego, Cal., May 11.)—At 9 o'clock the constitutionalists were bombarding Mazatlan. The shells hit a Mexican steamship in the harbor, forcing her to put to sea. The rebels hold the coast east of Mazatlan for a distance inland of about a mile, but Mazatlan seems to be well fortified and its capture is problematical.

It is estimated that between 4,000 and 4,500 federals constitute the garrison of Guaymas. The food supply at Guaymas is short, however. Rebel handbills declare the rebel forces intend to move on Guaymas soon.

SHOOT TRAIN BANDIT

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 12.—Physicians attending a man who held up the incoming coast limited train near here last night and was captured after being shot and beaten, today said he had boarded the train five miles south of here and robbed the passengers of $500 cash and $1,000 worth of jewelry. Two railroad detectives in the dining car opened fire on him and as he fell with bullets in the cheek and arm, a cook ran out and knocked him senseless.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

HOLLYHOCK DIPLOMACY

By Lawrence Alfred Clay.

Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Her name was Jane Schemerhorn, and she was thirty-seven years old. She wasn't homely enough to stop a clock, and she wasn't so pretty as to have any odes composed for her benefit and left on the doorsteps.

People often wonder why such and such an old maid didn't get married in her younger days. There are several answers to that, but the main one is that there are plenty of communities where the supply of men is not large enough to go 'round, and some poor girl must be left out—perhaps half a dozen of them. Sarah Schemerhorn was one of the left-outs or left-overs. She had a good home with a brother and tried to be a philosopher and had about resigned herself to the situation when a cousin made his arrival for a visit.

This cousin was not only a man, but an old bachelor—one of the last in the bag expected to give advice on love and matrimony. He hadn't been in the house five minutes when he said:

"Sarah, you are the only old maid among the Schemerhorns for a hundred years past."

"But it isn't my fault."

"Not up to this date, perhaps."

"What do you mean?"

"Is there an old back around here who would make a good husband?"

"And what if there is?"

"I'm going to help you to marry him."

"Don't talk like a goose, Stephen!"

"This is very serious talk on my part. What is the name of the man you have in mind?"

"I have no one in mind, but there is a bachelor who has a fruit farm just out of the village. His name is Foster."

"I'll go and look him over."

"Why, cousin?"

"Be back in an hour. Time enough has been lost already."

The cousin was back within the hour and reported:

"That man Foster is all right."

"How all right?"

"All right about making you a good husband. He's a steady, solid man, and one who would appreciate a good wife and a home."

"Cousin, you are talking very queer."

"Nothing queer about it. You are a good girl and ought to have a good husband. Foster is a good man, and he knows he would be far happier with a wife."

"But—"

"There's no buts about it. You have met him. Has he ever called here?"

"No."

"Then he has got something coming to him. I will arrange it so that he will call."

"You will do nothing of the kind, sir! Do you imagine I am going to throw myself at any man's head?"

"Gently, cousin Sarah. Nature intended that every man and woman should marry. There is a destiny you must obey, and sometimes one needs to ring in a trick or two in obeying. Why haven't I got married?"

"Too fickle, probably."

"Nothing of the kind. It's because I've always been scared at the idea of popping the question. If the right kind of a woman had schemed a little she'd have caught me long ago."

"How schemed?" was asked.

"Why, found a way of hinting that I could come courting, and while I courted she could have bragged what a pie-maker she was, and boasted that she made her own dresses and all that. There is love and matrimony, but after one has reached the age of twenty-five he wants to be handled diplomatically. Instead of calling it running after a man, you want to refer to it as encouraging a man to run after you."

"You have queer ideas!" laughed the old maid; but the next two hours were thoughtful ones.

On the next afternoon cousin Stephen said to her:

"Get on your things, Sarah, and take a little stroll with me. I saw something yesterday that I want to investigate a little closer."

As they reached the street they turned in the direction of the Foster farm, and after walking for twenty minutes Miss Sarah halted.

"Why—why, what are we going this way for?"

"To see Foster's hollyhocks."

"But—but—"

"Come right along, cousin. He has

SPLENDID SPRING TONIC AT SMALL COST

(The Home Doctor)

"There is no one thing more useful or necessary to the health of the family than a good blood purifier and system tonic. An inexpensive, yet one of the very best tonics known can be made at home by dissolving in 1/2 pint alcohol, 1/2 cup sugar and one ounce karene, then adding hot water to make a quart.

"A tablespoonful of this tonic taken before each meal quickly purifies the blood and rids the system of those accumulated poisons which cause pimples, sallowness, lost appetite and that tired, worn-out feeling. It regulates the liver perfectly, makes rich, clear blood and is very strengthening and energizing to anyone who feels all run down. This wonderful tonic, good for both old and young, used at needed intervals will ward off sickness and keep the family in the best of health."

Dumplings

For Soups, Stews and Fricasseeed Chicken

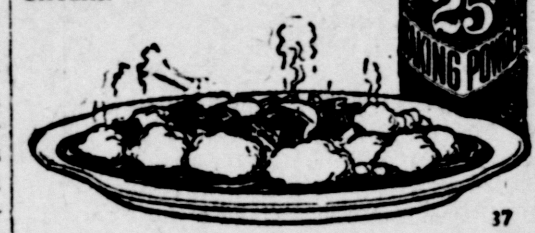

Left overs of roast lamb, veal or beef, the cheaper cuts of fresh meats, and fowls too old for roasting, make delicious and nourishing stews. K C Dumplings make them doubly attractive and the whole dish is most economical—an object to most families while meats are so high and must be made to go as far as possible.

K C Dumplings

By Mrs. Nevada Briggs, the well known baking expert.

2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonsful K C Baking Powder; 1 teaspoonful salt; 1 cup shortening; milk or cream.

Sift together three times, the flour, baking powder and salt; in this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough less stiff than for biscuits.

Allow the stew to boil down so that the liquid does not cover the meat or chicken. Add half a cup of cold water to stop its boiling and drop the dough in large spoonfuls on top of the meat or chicken. Cover and let boil again for 15 minutes.

Made with K C Baking Powder and steamed in this way, dumplings are as light as biscuits and are delicious with thickened gravy.

The recipe is adapted from one for Chicken Pot Pie in "The Cook's Book" by Janet McKenzie Hill, editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine. The book contains 90 excellent recipes for things that are good to eat and that help reduce the cost of living.

white and red and blue hollyhocks, and yesterday I thought I saw some black ones among them."

"But you couldn't have."

"But I want to make sure. A florist in Boston has advertised a reward of $1,000 for a specimen of black hollyhock. If Foster has got them and hasn't seen the advertisement, then I'll put him wise."

"I'll wait here at the gate," said the old maid.

She was left there while Stephen went round back of the house and hunted up his fellow-bachelor.

"Foster, I was noticing your hollyhocks yesterday."

"Yes."

"Mighty fine ones."

"Good as the average, I guess."

"I brought some one with me. It's a young lady—Miss Schemerhorn, my cousin. She's very fond of hollyhocks, but she's a little shy and stopped at the gate. Go down and invite her to come in."

"But, I—I—" stammered the farmer.

"Go on, man! You certainly won't be so ungallant as to keep a young lady waiting in the road?"

Mr. Foster would rather have faced a firing squad, but he went. He bowed and scraped and said it looked like rain, and the old maid bowed and smiled and said she hoped for a thunderstorm to clear the air, and so the worst was over with when they joined Stephen.

"Say, Foster, didn't I see some black hollyhocks here yesterday?"

"Never heard of that color," he replied.

"I was quite sure I saw them. Can you raise the black ones?"

"I don't think so."

"If you can you can get a reward of a thousand dollars. I believe that if you mixed lampblack with the seeds when sowing it would give you black hollyhocks."

The farmer and Miss Sarah laughed heartily at the idea, and thereby were brought a little closer together. He had a fine garden and fine fruit, and an hour was pleasantly spent looking around. When the visitors were ready to go Stephen carelessly asked:

"By the way, Foster, don't you play checkers?"

"Yes, when I have any one to play with."

"Then come over any night. We are all checker fiends at the house. You'll have to have your war-paint on or Miss Schemerhorn will send you home a beaten man."

"I'll come down if you'll come up here first," replied the blushing bachelor.

On the way home Stephen didn't refer to old maids, old bachelors, love, matrimony nor hollyhocks. Stephen knew his business, and he wasn't overdoing it.

There were checker nights for many nights after that, and finally it got to the point where about all the playing was done by Mr. Foster and Miss Schemerhorn. Stephen had to go away for a month, and when he returned he asked:

"Is Foster coming here yet?"

"Why, yes, he comes," was the hesitating reply.

"To play checkers?"

"We—we sometimes talk."

"Sarah, if I'd ever had a chance to rescue a girl I'd have married her."

"What has that got to do with my playing checkers with Mr. Foster?"

"Um."

The next day he pretended a lameness that forbade his getting out, and after many groans and sighs, said:

"Sarah, you ought to take a little walk for your health, anyway, and I wish you would do me a favor."

"Well—"

"Walk up as far as Foster's and tell him I've got back, and tell him to be sure to come down this evening."

"But I can't go to his home alone."

"You won't go in, of course, but he'll be around somewhere and you can call to him."

Miss Sarah said it didn't look just right to her, but she went. She had to pass over a vacant space where there were no houses, and here the tramp was lying in wait for her. She screamed as he rose and she screamed as he came nearer.

Farmer Foster was a very busy man that afternoon, but he was not too busy to hear the screaming and to jump the fence and run down the highway and knock that tramp galley west. While Sarah was indulging in hysterics and Mr. Foster was holding her in his arms and speaking soothing words, the knight of the road escaped further punishment by crawling away. He had been to the Schemerhorn house and collected his ten dollars of Stephen before Cousin Sarah got back to tell her story.

"So Foster batted him, did he?" asked Stephen.

"Oh, awfully!"

"And he had to hold you up?"

"Yes."

"And talk to you?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"He asked me to be his wife!"

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY LIEUTENANT

Last Two Men are Seated
and Whitman Opens
for the Prosecution

NEW YORK, May 12.—Completion of the jury which will try Charles Becker former police lieutenant, for plotting the murder of Herman Rosenthal, came shortly after noon today. Two jurors obtained today filled the box. They were:

No. 11—Frederick A. Sprock, bookkeeper, 40, married.

No. 12—Fred C. Barrett, consulting engineer, married.

Immediately after the completion of the jury Martin T. Manton, Becker's chief counsel, moved to dismiss the indictment because of insufficient evidence and also moved that a mistrial be declared, because of the premature publication of District Attorney Whitman's address to the jury by a New York newspaper. Both motions were promptly denied and Whitman then opened his address.

BRAKEMAN REPORTED ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Arthur Halseh, 1413 Wood St., a brakeman on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, was accidentally shot in the leg near Rice Lake by Henry C. Valiquett at 6:30 o'clock on Sunday, according to the story told by residents of French island today. Several persons are said to have witnessed the shooting. Halseh, who is able to be around today, denied the story, claiming his injuries were due to stepping on a nail. Dr. R. E. Flynn, who is attending Halseh, refused to discuss the case.

The Elephants
Story — Have a
Spring Path

The Elephants Made an Awful Fuss.

THE minute daddy got home that evening he was at once seized by Jack and Evelyn, who told him that he mustn't forget about the trip to the zoo the next day.

"What—is it that we are going to tomorrow?" asked daddy, just as if he had forgotten about it.

"Now, daddy," said Jack, "you mustn't pretend you have forgotten, for you know that we know better."

"Dear me," said daddy, "it does seem as if I couldn't get the best of either of you. Well, to tell the truth, I am looking forward to going myself. I think we will have a fine trip, and it will be a real holiday for all of us."

"One thing I must tell you, and that is the elephants will be all arrayed in their best spring garments. In other words, they will be so clean that they will almost look shiny, for yesterday they all had their baths."

"They very much objected. But of course the keepers thought that they would be glad of it afterward, when they would be much admired."

"So they scrubbed them with oil first and then water, while the elephants made an awful fuss."

"When the bath was over and they were fine and dry one elephant said to another:

"Do you know that this means it is spring?"

"Yes," said a second elephant; "I am very glad. Aren't you?"

"Yes; I am delighted, but we had better not say to the keepers that we are so very happy."

"But at that one of the oldest elephants spoke up:

"You know," said he, "I think we ought to be very much ashamed of ourselves. Here we are being treated so well. The keepers are so good to us. They put up with all our fuming and fussing because they wished us to feel fine and look nice so that people might enjoy looking at us. We ought to admit that at least we are grateful."

"The elephants thought it all over, and then they came to agree with the old one and thought they would not be so horrid and cross any more. So with all these fine resolutions, they waited for their supper."

"When the keepers came with their supper they were in the very best of tempers."

"The keepers of course noticed it and were delighted. One of them said 'You see, our hard afternoon's work was not in vain, after all.'

"The elephants were pleased to hear that, and so when we go to the zoo tomorrow we will find the elephants in fine shape."

STOP WORRYING
AND GO TO WORKIt may be good for the peace of mind of "doubting Thomases" whose trepidation makes the industrial structure of the country tremble, to read the following interview given out by Irving T. Bush, of the Bush Terminal company, interested in some two hundred eastern manufacturing enterprises:It seems necessary for most people to have something to worry about
and one of the most popular worries is about things in Washington. We hear every day some one say, "If Washington would only leave us
alone, business would be all right,"
or "Thank God, the war will at least give Congress something to think about besides business investigations." It never seems to occur to the fellow who worries that his Washington troubles may be largely a state of his own mind. We worried all last spring because of tariff legislation which we wanted, voted for and got. The job was done quickly and intelligently, and I don't hear many kicks. At least, we have got what most of us thought we wanted.
Then we started in to worry about currency legislation. Some of us were sure the banks would all be put out of business and industry paral-yzed. That job was done—and it needed doing—and we find that instead of putting the banks out of business
they have accepted the new system as a helpful piece of machinery, which will enable them to serve business.
Since then we have worried about how to divide the country into banking districts, worried because the president would not go to war and then because he did.During the time of Roosevelt and Taft, we worried because the attorney general attacked this business and that, without any definite rules, and now we are worrying because Mr.
Wilson proposes that Congress cre-ate a board of umpires to formulate rules by which we may play the game. A few years ago "worry conventions" were called to protest against an increase in freight rates,
and now we are all worrying for fear
the rates will not be increased. If there be any disguised blessing in war, it is not that it will take the minds in Washington off business,
but that it may take the minds of business off Washington.Let's remember we are patriotic Americans and stop worrying. The man who has reformed the tariff, reorganized our currency and banking
laws, and put the Mexican situation
—which he inherited—in a fair way
to be solved peacefully by a congress
of American nations, deserves support. We don't hear anything about the crops because there is nothing to worry about there. They are growing, and bid fair to be unusual. A rate decision is coming and money is cheap. Let's go to work.Plainly, President Bush cannot be classed as a "progressive crank." He is interested in big business in a big way. More, his interview found space in the Wall Street Journal, a trade paper which has dared for years to tell Wall street unpleasant things about itself, but which is not infected with ismitis. By all means, let industry array itself in imperturbability and "go to work" as President Bush is doing. Else, while others wait for "better times" he alone will capture the game and leave rival business men sadly reflecting that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the Bush.""ERE THE COCK
CROWS TWICE"We often think of our stalwart brethren, in whom long enduring adversity has bred a capacity for intense feeling, as beings who"Are gladdest in their gladness when they're glad,
And saddest in their sadness when
they're sad;
But the gladness of whose glad
And the sadness of whose sad Isn't in it with their badness when they're bad."But isn't it funny that, nowadays,
the "maddest of their mad" is that inspired by references to themselves
as "stalwarts?"Don't you just dare call their very own convention a "stalwart" convention!They protest as though the name
were an execration. Defending themselves against themselves, as it were.
But did you ever hear of a progressive denying his colors or resenting the term by which his political principles are known?Now, our stalwart friends are not ashamed of being stalwarts. Most of them believe in stalwartism—
hereabout—and glory in it. But under cover of what they believe to be a tactical blunder of their opponents,
they want to lure the unsuspecting to their bandwagon, just as the pirates
of old Tripoli used to fly a union jack
when they saw a British merchantman looming out of the brine.They want to take first base on McGovern's sacrifice hit, as it were.
But that can be little consolation
to Emanuel Philipp when he hears friend Barber denying that he (Phillip) had anything to do with our very own convention. Indeed must friend Emanuel recall the sad words:"Ere the cock crows twice, thou shalt deny me thrice."
Prophectic!

Would Keep Mines Closed

WASHINGTON, May 12. — Reopening any mines now closed at Canon
City or Walsenburg, or in Boulder county, Col., would inject into the strike situation a new and dangerous element, according to Secretary of War Garrison. The secretary today denied that the federal authorities
will oppose the importation of strikebreakers into the Colorado district."The department has no wish to mix in the labor side of the strike
situation, but the commanders in the Boulder county district, in Walsen-burg and in Canon City all agreed that the situation, quiet at this time, might easily be made serious if any change is made before the strike troubles are settled," said Garrison.Every man is a polygamist. When his pastor.Quips and Cranks

The Garden

Come into the garden, Maud,
The one I have made for you;
With its rows of turnips and cauliflower,
And young spring onions, too.I have spaded and hoed and raked
And planted the congressman's
seeds,
And it seems as though we ought to raise
Enough to supply our needs.But our garden will go to pot,
The same as it has of yore,
And all of the vegetables we eat
We'll buy at the grocery store.

A Revelation

"There is a lot of bluff about the high rates paid by the magazines.
Writers support this bluff in the hope that eventually high rates will be paid them. But occasionally they become frank, and then we arrive at startling revelations."The speaker was Egbert Watts,
the literary statistician. He continued:
"I was walking in Broadway the other day with the popular magazine
writer Blanc. Blanc seemed distraught. Among the fine shops and the pretty women and the splendid motors he mooned along in a dream.
"Blanc," said I, "a penny for your thoughts.""Blanc started, then smiled cyni-cally.
"Well, I don't know," he said.
"I've had worse offers from the magazines." —New York Tribune.

Force of Habit

Mrs. Jones was traveling in Europe, accompanied by her two daughters, Eleanor and Marion. Eleanor planned all the routes they were to take and by what means they should journey, but Marion, who was the only one of the party that could speak any language other than English, was obliged to make all the inquiries necessary for the desired arrangements. As a consequence the others were constantly saying to her,
"Ask him this" or "Ask him that."
One day Mrs. Jones misunderstood what they had planned to do and climbed into the wrong carriage.
Eleanor looked at her in desperate silence for a minute or two and then turned to Marion and said, "Ask her to get out." —Judge.

Making a Song

"I understand you have taken to song writing?"
"Yes," replied the versatile man.
"I'm told that there is a demand for something in accord with the tendency of the time something simple and homely that shows the dominant force of the feminine nature
and which nevertheless shows woman as claiming deep devotion."
"Have you done anything in those lines?"
"Yes. I have the finish of the chorus. It is as follows:
"She hit me with a fence rail, but I love her just the same." —Washington Star.

Women IncreasingWigs, colored or otherwise, rats,
switches, transformations, curling tongs, sharp metal hair pins, artificial waving methods, singeing and a round dozen more strictly modern devices, have combined to ruin the hair
of many women, so there is decidedly an increase in baldness, though lately the magazines and papers have rather stopped the advance of hair
trouble by showing that simply air,
sunshine and proper care will develop heavy, beautiful hair upon any head. Great care should be taken when washing the hair to not remove more than the excess oil from the head. A perfectly safe, economical, cooling, invigorating shampoo can be had by dissolving a teaspoonful can-throx, which every good druggist
has, in a cup of hot water. This mixture cleanses gently, yet thoroughly, and gives to the scalp and hair the vigor that insures scalp-health and hair-beauty. Canthrox shampoos make the head feel good and are very beneficial where hair is faded, dull
and brittle, the regular use of which will greatly enrich the color of the hair and give to it a beautiful gloss
and softness.MADAM,

noon during a recent trip across

aware of this peculiarity, greeted him
with a trifling query as to the probable duration of favorable weather.
"Don't know, ma'am—don't know," replied the captain gruffly.
"Better go and ask the cook."
"O, I beg your pardon," said the passenger. "I thought I was address-

A Lonesome Donkey

This summer, Mr. Oakes, an eminent lawyer sent his wife and young daughter to a farm house in the White mountains for a vacation.
Shortly after, he received an urgent request from the little girl to send her a pet donkey to use while there.
She had read about donkeys and heard about them, but was not at all familiar with their peculiar vocalism.
The donkey arrived and the child
had many rides around the vicinity.
She enjoyed it all hugely except the animal's strange noises which inspired her with the profoundest pity for his evident distress.One day, after vainly trying to subdue his vocalism, she wrote a letter to her father, in which she said:"Dear Father:—I do wish you would come up here soon, my donkey is so very lonesome." —National Monthly.

CHAPTER THREE.

It was broad day when I came to consciousness, with the events of the previous night more like the uncertain memory of some dream than aught else; and in truth Captain Maxwell, the French gentleman, and the strange lady were some notable personages to have come into my uneventful life, it is no wonder that at first I could scarce bring myself to believe in their reality.As I lay there arguing with myself the very fact of that meeting on the moor, I became aware of voices
in the yard, and slipping off the bed
ran to the window which overlooked
the back of the house. Rising on tiptoe to peer out, there first fell under my eyes the huge travelling coach of the strangers, so I knew at once that it was not all a dream, as I had at first been disposed to think.
Furthermore, I could see three of the serving men at work grooming
the horses, while a fourth—it was the hard-featured coachman who had first spoken with us on the moor—I could not see but could hear: he was chaffing Meg by the kitchen door,
and I was pleased to note that she gave him back as good as he sent,
for our Meg had a ponderous but effective wit.I observed that the three men busy with the horses were delighted with the sharpness, or rather the bluntness, of her speech, since they found space to pause from time to time to take part in the conversation; mainly, however, with the evident purpose of encouraging Meg,
which was needless.As I watched and listened, Captain Maxwell came suddenly about a corner of the house. Instantly there was quiet, the men went at their horses, backs and legs in silence;
while their chaffing comrade moved out across the yard."Your orders, sir?" I hear him say.I stole downstairs to the kitchen.
My thoughts were of breakfast just then, but I found Meg had prepared for me, and as I sat at table, she,
as she moved about the room, told me
of all that had happened during the night; for Meg and I were sworn friends, though on occasion her temper could be of a most uncertain
quality, especially on baking day,
when, if ever, I was disposed to friendship and intimacy. But her recent wordy encounter with Captain Maxwell's hard-faced serving man
had left her in such high good humour that she rattled off into her story without any prompting from me.To begin with, she told me of the second small maid that had been ushered into this world whilst I slept.
She also told me, as one deeply versed in such matters, that my sister gave astonishing promise, and that shortly I would be permitted to see her; which prospective favour I fear aroused me to no great joy. But I asked her how my mother was, for there I was really concerned. Meg assured me she was in the best of spirits."In no such dumps as when you came!" she added, which I thought was unnecessary; but then a long acquaintance may have its embar-
assments, as who has not found out,
"And the strange lady, Meg?" I asked."Poor young thing! The surgeon
do seem in doubt about her," said Meg.
And instantly she looked mighty grave."Is she not well?" I asked.
"No, she beant," said Meg.
"When will they go away?""They can't go while she is living there hovering betwixt this world and the next—eh, but even you might know that, Dickey."That day I lived unregarded for the most part, but my perfect freedom soon began to pall on me; I fancied it smacked too much of sheer neglect, and as the morning advanced my spirits steadily declined, for
I was conscious that some potent
change was making itself manifest in my surroundings. I had never known the house so silent, and though it stood open to the day, with the sun streaming in at doors and windows, there was yet something
as intangible as a child's passing humour, and as real as a feared and forbidding presence, that sent me forth. In the garden was the French gentleman and Captain Maxwell, and the measured pace of their booted feet on the packed earth of the friar's
walk, and the murmur of their voice,

es, followed me as I wandered about the place.At length I was summoned indoors by Meg, who took me upstairs to my mother's room to see my new sister, but first she held forth in an improving manner on the moral value of the opportunity—that would henceforth be mine for the cultivation of such virtues as gentleness and self-sacrifice. If aught was needed to complete my feeling of profound depression, Meg's homily
would have sufficed, since already my nose was somewhat out of joint, as the saying is.I found my father with my mother; he was sitting by her bedside,
and he laughed at the serious face
which I brought into the room. I doubt not he comprehended something of my feeling just then."So you have come to see your sister Elizabeth, Dick?" he said, resting a hand on my shoulder."Yes, sir," I said, striving hard to look cheerful, for Meg had dwelt upon the fact that some little show of enthusiasm would be expected of me,
though I fear I made a lamentable failure of it now that I was put to the test.Indeed, the last four and twenty hours must have been wholly tragic
but for the advent of the strangers,
which had given me something to think of beside my private griefs."Well, kiss your mother, Dick, and wish her joy, and then you shall be rewarded," said my father.I needed no urging, but was both willing and anxious to kiss my mother, and the pressure of her arms
about me was vastly comforting. I remembered as she held me close
that I had not seen her in two whole days; a privation the like of which I had possibly never before known in all my short life."Dick, it's the dearest babe!" she whispered, releasing me.And then Meg, in something of a needless flutter, as it seemed to me,and with a deprecatory, "May ma'am?" drew aside the blanket, and there on the bed beside my mother
saw not one, but two babes."Why, there are two of them!"
cried, drawing back in dismay."Yes," said my mother gently.
"The one with the darker skin belongs to the poor lady who came last night.""Why don't she keep it, then?"
asked, with such a show of mingled dismay and anger that my father laughed aloud.

AN ITALIAN SINGER

And Her Last Song

There are popular songs from operas endeared to the hearts of the American people associated with famous singers. The name of "Norma" will always be associated with Giulia Grisi, the Italian prima donna born in 1810. When only sixteen she appeared in opera at Bologna, and won the hearts of the audience by her sweetness and wonderful compass of voice. It was her heartfelt rendition of "Norma" that has left its impression on musical history. She sang in the United States during the years preceding the Civil war, and even divided honors with Jenny Lind as the most popular singer of her time. She died in 1869, and it is said the last song she sang was the famous selection from "Norma" upon which her reputation was made.Several of Grisi's favorites are included in "Heart Songs"—the musical library of song, now being placed with its readers by this paper. The coupon, elsewhere in today's paper,

URGES LICENSE FOR REPORTERS

O'Hara Would Restrict the Practice of Newspaper Work Same as Law and Medicine

LAWRENCE, Kan., May 12.—The first afternoon's discussion of ethical problems connected with newspaper work held under the auspices of the national newspaper conference at the University of Kansas gave occasion for the presentation of a plan to license newspaper reporters just as doctors and lawyers are permitted to practice under license. The plan was presented by Lieutenant Governor Garratt O'Hara, a former Chicago newspaperman.

Mr. O'Hara's proposal aroused much discussion among the Kansas editors, most of whom opposed the idea. Mr. O'Hara has drafted his ideas into the form of a bill which will be presented to the legislature of Illinois at its next session.

There are five requirements to which Mr. O'Hara would hold prospective journalists: First, the applicant must be 21 years old; second, he must have the equivalent of a high school education; third, he must have studied two years in a good recognized college of journalism, or have passed the same period of time in a newspaper office as an apprentice reporter; fourth, he must furnish the board of journalism with positive proof of good moral character; fifth, he must successfully pass an examination in writing conducted by the state board at regular intervals.

Papers arguing against the plan to license newspapermen were read from General Harrison Grey Otis of the Los Angeles Times and Louis Wiley of the New York Times.

Dr. Washington Gladden of Columbus, Ohio, speaking today before hundreds of members of the conference, said the newspaper profession is as sacred a calling as the ministry.

During a recent interview, Mr. Joseph Mercier, of 253 Walker street, Lowell, Mass., said to the writer: "My little boy, Clifford, now seven years old, has taken Father John's Medicine whenever he had a cold or cough, ever since he was two years old, and it has never failed to give good results. We find that the medicine stops the wheezing, and he does not do it when we give him Father John's Medicine. We believe that Father John's Medicine gives him increased weight and strength, and we know that while taking it he always gains in weight. We would not be without it in the house, and strongly recommend Father John's Medicine to mothers of children who are weak and run down."

MAKE PLANS FOR "Y" SUMMER CAMP

Winona Y. W. C. A. to Join with Local Association in Maintaining Summer Camp

MISS CLEMENT CAMP SECRETARY

Physical Director Will Be in Charge of All Camp Activities This Season

Members of the Winona Young Women's Christian association will join with the local association in maintaining a summer camp this year, according to the announcement of plans for this summer's camp by the camp committee of the La Crosse Y. W. C. A., following a meeting yesterday afternoon. Miss Bertha Hoefke is chairman of the camp committee, the other members including Mrs. E. R. Burke and the Misses Bertha Shuman and Amanda Clement.

Another announcement which will be hailed with enthusiasm by campers of former years is that Miss Amanda Clement, physical director at the association, will spend her entire time at the camp and will be in charge of camp activities, which will include swimming, boating, games and various other forms of recreation. Miss Bertha Hoefke will be "camp mother," as formerly.

The "Y" camp will be held at Riverside camp the same as in former years, the cottage and houseboat "Katie G." occupied by the campers last year, having been secured again for the coming season. The camp being easily accessible to the city, it is expected that many girls will spend their evenings at the camp, going to and from their work in the city, while others will spend their vacations there. No date for the opening of the camp has been set, but it is probable that the first of July will see the summer home of the Y. W. C. A. in full operation.

The May breakfast of the camp department will be held on the morning of Memorial day as usual, the revenues from which will be devoted to camp expenses.

KILLS GIRL WITH AXE

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio, May 12.—"God will forgive if others will not." Held in the county jail today after chopping to death her 17 year old daughter Jessie with an axe, then cutting the girl's throat with a razor, Mrs. John Grimm, wife of a farmer, made this statement. Constant care of the daughter preyed on Mrs. Grimm's mind and produced an insane desire to put the sufferer out of misery, the authorities believe.

ARE WRINKLES MORE COMMON

Because life is more complex—Because women are interested in so many more things than they used to be—Because dividing a day among household duties, politics, clubs, charities, society, business and personal care is a strenuous thing—and strenuous life makes marks upon the face, the woman of today who wants to look right has long since started to aid Nature in its uneven fight and many of the wisest and busiest have decided upon this economical vegetable jelly cream as the simplest wrinkle remover and skin stimulator. It protects the surface of the skin and brings the blood to the surface where it performs its upbuilding work. Just get from your druggist an ounce of almozoin, put it into a fruit jar and add half a pint of water and two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. Let this mixture stand for several hours, stirring occasionally during this time. Before retiring apply rather thickly over wrinkled or flabby surface and allow it to dry. It will harden rapidly and, when applied, you will note a slight tightening of the skin. In the morning remove with hot water and note the immediate effect which is lasting.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD
BY HAL SHERIDAN

Thirteen rounds to a 5 to 5 dead heat in which a majority of the 57 varieties of the national pastime were exhibited, marked yesterday's Cub-Cardinal game at St. Louis, mercifully terminated by darkness.

Sixteen Cardinal players and fifteen Cub men who broke into the box score were unable to settle the fracasseed contest. Even threatened intervention when Bill Sweeney, attacked by the enemy, walloped Lee Magee in the eleventh, proved unavailing.

But the Philadelphia Nationals in a business-like manner disposed of the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 1, in season record time of 1:22. Alexander, touched for a homer by Daubert in the first, did not permit a Brooklyn player to see second after that.

Driving Perdue from the slab, the Giants made it three straight from Boston yesterday, 8 to 6. Merkle and Schmidt whaled a homer apiece with two men on bases.

The Yanks, with Ray Caldwell on the firing line, downed the Red Sox at Boston, 6 to 2. Triples by Walsh, Holden and Maisel caused the ruin of Combe of Boston, who was jerked in the fifth.

The metropolitan debut of the Federals in Greater New York took a little of the conceit out of the Tip-tops, the tail-end Pittsburg rebels winning 3 to 0, despite the fact that Tom Seaton pitched.

The inaugural game of the Federals at Buffalo was also grabbed by the visiting players, Baltimore drawing the long end of a 4 to 3 score.

"Big Moose" Walsh, once the greatest of spitball artists, essayed to come back in the White Sox-Pirate exhibition game at Pittsburg. The National leaguers hammered his offerings to all parts of the field, scoring seven runs on eleven safeties in four innings.

As a man grows older, he is apt to regard being left alone as the greatest privilege.

CHICAGO STARTS TO CHECK GUNMEN

CHICAGO, May 12.—As the first move in an attempt to cut down the number of gunmen slayings in Chicago the police today began the enforcement of an ordinance, passed last night by the city council, which places drastic restrictions on the sale of deadly weapons.

Following three deaths yesterday directly due to the ease with which revolvers could be purchased, and numerous recent killings, an ordinance, licensing the sale of all weapons, forbidding their display in show windows, and allowing the purchase of firearms only upon the permit of the chief of police, was passed 57 to 7. Severe penalties are provided for violations.

HISTORIC TRAIL OF MEXICO CITY

Funston's Route to Capital Follows Path of Cortes and Winfield Scott

INVASION CANNOT BE VERY FAST

Tremendous Rise in Altitude Makes It Necessary to Let Troops Proceed Slowly

By WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD, United Press Staff Correspondent.

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, May 5.—

By Mail to New York—How to get to Mexico City is the question which General Fred Funston may have to solve. He must get there in the quickest way and with as little bloodshed as possible in order not to arouse Mexicans to slaughter Americans who may remain in the country. Should Funston be ordered to advance on Mexico City, it is a historic and romantic trail that his troops must follow.

The Mexican capital lies 7,500 feet above sea level, and is 240 miles from Vera Cruz. The army at one point will reach an altitude of 11,000 feet. From the tropic heat of Vera Cruz the soldiers, within a few days, will reach a climate of autumn days and November nights. They must pass under the shadow of the huge, dead, old volcano of Crizaba, with its snow-covered top.

It will not be the first time—that is if Funston finds it impossible to proceed on steam trains—that an army has clanked its way through the great Mexican ravines. Once in the sixteenth century, the same passes rang with the rattle of the armor of Cortez's Spaniards. There was only a handful of them and they had heard only as a vague Indian legend that a great and rich city was ahead of them beyond the mountains. A few years later Cortez fled by these same passes and even today the Mexicans hate a Spaniard more than any other foreigner.

Along the trail of the narrow gauge railroad, which Funston may use if engines can be obtained, General Winfield Scott, in 1847, led his army to Mexico City. It took him many weeks to reach the great capital. His only task was to reach and take the city, progressing slowly and with caution. Funston's task may be far different. Funston's task may be to advance swiftly and as peacefully as he can to save the lives of Americans who may still be in interior cities.

Later in 1862 a French army whose duty was to place Maximilian on an emperor's throne in Mexico City passed through these same mountain defiles and by the same pathway departed, leaving Maximilian to be executed by the hand of General Aureliano Blanquet, who today is Huerta's secretary of war.

As the army approaches Mexico City the atmosphere will grow more and more rare because of the altitude. Mountain fever, which is only a passing nausea, will affect some of the soldiers, but within a short time, this will pass away.

Whichever way they reach the city—by the narrow gauge, the broad gauge or by foot marches—they will see as they near their destination, the peaks of two giant, snow-covered mountains, standing side by side, sentinels through the ages of the world, beautiful, mountain-hemmed Mexico City. One of the mountains is known in the Indian language as the "White Sleeping Woman."

There high in the sky the American soldiers will see the vast form of a prostrate woman, lying face up, her hair stretching down the sides of the mountain in square miles of white snow. Near by they will see the snow-covered, pointed peak of the dead volcano of Popocatepetl, which schoolboys for many generations have been spanked for not remembering or pronouncing—and the soldiers will find after they reach the capital that their teacher did not pronounce it correctly either.

At their feet lying in a vast basin, rimmed by mountains, they will see the beautiful valley of Mexico. In the center of the valley, the white stone city with its cathedral domes, its miles of boulevards and mansions and its acres of parks where violets of spring, roses of June and golden rod of autumn bloom every day of the year, and where the half million people who live there content themselves in the most wonderful climate in the world.

Then, into the city. There are some real soldiers, too, in the Indian capital; generals who have studied in the schools of Europe and who have fought in Indian battles almost every year of their careers. Already the American troops have had a taste of the Mexican military strategy. For days before the Americans landed at Vera Cruz, the Mexican government had been withdrawing as many railroad engines as it could obtain. When the Americans finally put foot on shore they found only two very ancient yard engines, one

WILSON RETURNS

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Refreshed by a good night's rest after his strenuous day in New York, President Wilson arrived here at 7:10 today. He went immediately to the White house for breakfast.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat serves uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

FORCE SURRENDER OF ALL WEAPONS

Searching of All Civilians in Strike District Will Begin Tomorrow

CAN RE-OPEN FEW OF MINES

Those Closed by Battles of Late April Will Be Allowed to Start Up Again

TRINIDAD, Col., May 12.—Forcible disarmament of civilians in the southern Colorado strike zone who are not entitled to bear arms will begin at 5 p. m. tomorrow, according to a proclamation by Colonel James Lockett of the Eleventh United States cavalry, posted throughout the zone today. Coal strikers, mine guards or others who have not voluntarily surrendered their weapons at that hour may be searched.

Lockett also issued a proclamation defining the government's policy with respect to reopening of mines. It held that mines closed when the strike commenced must remain closed during the occupancy of the strike zone by federal troops.

Mines which were closed by the violence of April 20 and the four days of fighting which followed, may reopen with the forces of men employed when the fighting began.

SALT KILLS DANDELIONS

The best way to kill individual dandelion plants is to cut off their tops and put a pinch of salt (about a thimbleful) on the surface of each exposed root. This will kill most of them. As salt, if generally applied, ruins soil, the salt should be used sparingly and applied only to the root tops of the dandelion.

on the narrow gauge road and the other on the wider road.

They will need both gauges to transport 5,000 soldiers to Mexico City.

It is by the narrow gauge route that Funston is most likely to proceed to the capital—if he should be ordered—as on the broad gauge, which is one of the most daring pieces of railroading in the world, there are several steel bridges which the Mexicans would certainly destroy with dynamite. On the narrow gauge road there are only a few culverts which might be easily repaired, and no tunnels which the Mexicans might dynamite.

CONEY DECLARES THE CAR IS HIS

Robert Coney, appearing in examination for discovery before Judge John Brindley yesterday, declared that the automobile replevined by his brother John belongs to him and that he purchased it.

According to his story the family kept a common strong box, everybody depositing and taking money out when they pleased. He said his brother gave him a check for $500 to buy the car but later took the money out of the family strong box.

The case which will come before the circuit court within the next few days, involves a fight between two brothers, John and Robert Coney for the possession of an automobile.

Acute Articular Rheumatism

The exact cause of rheumatism is unknown, though it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. It may be also said with equal truth that no remedy has been found which is a specific in all cases. In fact the literature of rheumatism shows that there are but few drugs which have not been given a trial. In the hands of one observer we find that a certain drug has been used with the utmost satisfaction; others have found the same remedy to be a great disappointment. All physicians however agree that every method of treatment is aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and quiet the nervous system and Dr. W. S. Schultz expresses the opinion of thousands of practitioners when he says that Anti-Kamnie Tablets should be given preference over all other remedies for the relief of the pain in all forms of rheumatism. These tablets can be purchased in any quantity. They are also unsurpassed in headaches, neuralgias and all pain. Ask for A-K Tablets. P. S. For Eczema and Skin Diseases, use A-K Salve.

N. P. GIVES STATE $95,000 CHECK

MADISON, Wis., May 12.—The state treasury funds were boosted to the tune of $95,000 when a check of the Northern Pacific railroad was turned over to Secretary of State John J. Donald and by him to State Treasurer Henry Johnson this morning. This sum was declared due the state by the supreme court following a suit filed against the company by the state. The Northern Pacific had made stock increases by resolution instead of in the usual manner, and as no fee was paid the state under the stock and bond law, Attorney General Owen started the suit.

MT. ETNA ACTIVE SIGILY IN TERROR

Volcano Starts Eruption in District but Recently Shaken by Earthquakes

ROME, May 12.—Mount Etna became more active today and the thousands of refugees in the Cantania district, shaken by the severe earthquakes of last week, were thrown into a state of terror. Great clouds of smoke poured from the crater of the volcano, with sheets of flame leaping high in the air at intervals. Cinders showered down upon the villages near the base of the mountain. There were almost constant tremors of the earth during yesterday and today but none was severe enough to cause additional damage.

STORM RESPONSIBLE FOR TWO DEATHS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 12.—Dr. George W. Goetz, 28, a prominent physician of McKeesport, Pa., was instantly killed early today when he became confused in the heavy storm, stumbled blindly upon the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Hawkins and was run down by a train. ### AEROPLANES HIT 800 FEET IN AIR

English Army Biplanes Crash Together at Aldershot; Two Are Killed

ALDERSHOT, Eng., May 12.—A head-on collision between two army biplanes flying 800 feet in the air occurred here today resulting in the death of two men and the serious injury of a third.

One of the biplanes was being piloted by Captain Edward Anderson and the other by Lieutenant C. W. Wilson. Captain Anderson and his mechanic, Carter, were dead when taken from the wreckage and Lieutenant Wilson was seriously injured.

Both aeroplanes were speeding at a tremendous rate and smashed together with a terrific crash. Both machines were completely wrecked.

DIRECTS VERDICT FOR THE THEATER

Judge E. C. Higbee today directed a verdict for the defendant in the case brought against the New Majestic company by Mrs. Elizabeth Weeks, who alleged injuries sustained as the result of falling down stairs in the Majestic building. The evidence showed that the Majestic company was in no way negligent.

Mrs. Weeks alleged that she caught her foot on a projection on one of the steps and fell to the bottom, sustaining an injured knee and shoulder. Four other witnesses testified that they had examined the stairs leading from the balcony immediately after the accident and could find nothing that would cause her to fall.

Can Only Appropriate

DENVER, Col., May 12.—The special session of the Colorado legislature called by Gov. Ammons to appropriate money to defray military expenses incurred by the state during the Colorado coal strike and to consider other legislation probably will do nothing but appropriate. The senate today began consideration of a bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the militia, which passed the house late yesterday, 44 to 15.

The senate killed two other measures fathered by the governor. The enacting clause of the bill establishing a permanent constabulary in the coal fields was stricken out and the bill empowering the governor to prevent the sale and possession of firearms was pigeon-holed in committee.

THREATENS DEATH TO "GRINGOS"

Bandit Ruevedo Posts Notice He Will Kill Three Americans for Every Dead Outlaw

EL PASO, Texas, May 12.—"I will kill three gringos for every one of my men killed by Villa's soldiers," Roderico Quevedo.

This threat was found posted today at a ranch near Columbus, N. M., according to word received by the United States military authorities here. American secret service men have been sent on the trail of the Quevedo bandits, who have been operating in northwestern Chihuahua committing depredations on both Mexican and American ranchmen.

The report to the military officials was that Quevedo is destroying windmills owned by the American land and cattle companies, making good a threat of several days ago to destroy American property if $9,000 in gold was not deposited at a spot near Nogales, Ariz.

THINK GIRL SUICIDE

RELATIVES SAY LEUM WAS CRAZY

Niece Today Starts Suit to Break Will to Recover Estate of Deceased Uncle

Claiming that her uncle, Martin Leum, was insane at the time the will was drawn and that the will was not properly executed, Miss Kate Olson, his niece, has started suit to break the will and to deprive the La Crosse Lutheran hospital of an $8,000 bequest.

Miss Olson has retained Attorney C. W. Graves of Viroqua to prosecute her case.

Attorney James Thompson of La Crosse, attorney for the Lutheran hospital, today declared that he would furnish evidence to disprove the claim of the niece.

Miss Olson alleges that the will, which was drawn by Leum himself, is improperly executed.

HAMBURGER GETS YEAR IN WAUPUN

One year in the state prison at Waupun was the sentence imposed upon John Hamburger, charged with the theft of a $1 watch, when he appeared in county court yesterday afternoon. Hamburger was released from the state prison a few months ago where he had been sent for a similar offense.

Shortly after his release, Hamburger enticed John Stugen, a Lanesboro farmer, to a local hotel and after relieving him of his watch and money departed. A month ago, Sheriff John Weber was notified that Mr. Hamburger had been captured at New Albin, but upon arriving there to escort him to La Crosse it was found that the wrong man was arrested.

Chief of Police John Webber, who has been working on the case, finally traced Hamburger to a barn near La Crescent, where he was surrounded and captured by the police early Sunday morning. He made no resistance when arrested and pleaded guilty to the charge of petty larceny when arraigned before Judge John Brindley late yesterday afternoon.

REPORTED ESSMAN WILL PAY STATE

MADISON, Wis., May 12.—It was understood this morning that a settlement of all of the deficiencies in the office of former superintendent of public property would be made to the state treasurer late this afternoon. The sum, it is believed, will be somewhat over $4,000 and was furnished by former Supt. Essman after the examiners of the state banking department had checked up the deficiencies. Essman is now in Waupun serving a fifteen months sentence for the peculations.

Aunt Sally's Advice To Beauty Seekers

Lydia says: "I've tried most everything for my freckles, but can't lose them. What do you suggest?" See answer to "Stella."

P. J. K. asks: "Is there anything better than massage to remove wrinkles? Too much massaging may aggravate a wrinkled condition, tending to soften and loosen the tissue. I advise bathing the face in an astringent lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered sassafras in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective."

Stella writes: "My complexion is horribly muddy. What shall I do for it?" Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's. Apply this nightly like you use cold cream, washing it off mornings. This will cause the offensive cuticle gradually to make way, by a process of gentle absorption, for the clear, velvety healthy skin underneath.—Woman's Realm.

ATTEMPT TO HALT MELLEN TESTIMONY

Apparent that Pressure Is Being Brought to Bear to Block Expected Revelations

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Solicitor Folk of the interstate commerce commission was still doubtful this afternoon, how soon Charles S. Mellen would tell his story of the New Haven railroad's "high finance." That something unexpected has occurred to halt temporarily Folk's plans to examine Mellen and former directors of the New Haven railroad was strongly indicated by events during today's hearing.

When pointedly asked if Mellen would go on the stand, Folk declared: "It is my plan to go on as I announced, but that matter is entirely up to the commission."

That pressure was being brought to bear upon the commission to keep Mellen from telling his story at this time was believed. It was declared that Attorney McReynolds was anxious to hold up Mellen's testimony until his examiners could complete their work.

HOLD UP PURCHASE

RACINE, Wis., May 12.—The Racine Loan and Trust company of New York today served an injunction on the city restraining all further proceedings in the proposed purchase of the Racine Water works, until it can be determined whether the municipality, in case of taking over the plant, is liable for the $1,200,000 mortgage bonds issued by the water company in 1901.

Wisdom From Wives.

A man who had been married three times used to say, even in the presence of his third wife, "I married the world the flesh and my present wife." And he gave his experience (says the Rev. E. J. Hardy in "Still Happy Though Married") as follows: "My first wife cured me of romance, my second taught me humility, and my third made me a philosopher."

BEDBUGS CAPTURE MISSOURI NAVY

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—Because a crew of bedbugs boarded Missouri's navy—the cruiser Isle de Luzon—while the relic of the battle of Manila lay at anchor in the local harbor, the Missouri navy militia may be without a fighting ship for some time to come. The Isle de Luzon left here April 6, under orders to proceed to New York.

Secretary Daniels in a letter to the commanding officer complained that the gallant craft had been sadly neglected by the Missouri reserves. He declared there were bedbugs in the officers' quarters, the mattresses were filthy, the compartments generally dirty, the condition inside and out the machinery spaces was poor to fair, the rubber gaskets were too heavily painted and the general cleanliness and up-keep of the ship has been found deficient when it was returned to the government.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

Bottles Airtight. Corks may be made to seal catsup airtight. If they are slightly larger than tops of bottles they should be boiled in clear water for 20 minutes; this decreases their size, says the St. Louis Star. Insert in mouths of bottles while hot; they will expand in cooling, and in this way will make perfectly airtight stoppers.

Road to Happiness. We expect the roads to happiness, like those which lead to heaven, to be very long and especially very complex, says Jean Finot. Yet there are candid souls who go there by the simplest ways. And the road they pursue is the best one.

Chicago Grain Market. CHICAGO, May 12.-The grain market today opened 1-8c to 3-8c over Monday's close on a firm cable and bullish crop news from Europe and the southwest, but this gain was dissipated by an indisposition to buy and at noon May had lost 3-8c and July 1-2c.

Hands Off. A farmer was going through an art institution where a number of models of ancient Greek sculpture was exhibited. He noticed that on each one hung a placard saying, "Hands Off." "What 'n thunder do they have to tell ye every time that the hands is off?" he exclaimed at last. "Do they reckon we can't see it? An' why don't they never say anything 'bout the arms and legs bein' off, too?"

Cromwell. Cromwell had no royal blood in his veins. The contention that such was the case failed when put to the test. The Old Protector belonged to what is known as the "Gentry." His only rank lay in his genius and unconquerable will-power. His "blood" was just plain English blood, and could in no way claim to have "crept through scoundrels ever since the flood."

Boaster may be a polite term for liar.

U.S.S. MONTANA IN PORT WITH BODIES

Funeral Ship Docks After a long Voyage with Heroes Home from Vera Cruz

CARRIED SEVENTEEN CASKETS
Superstructure with Dead Guarded Night and Day by Armed Jackies at Attention

BY BERNARD RUCKER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
ON BOARD THE U. S. S. MONTANA, NEW YORK, May 12.—Seventeen flag draped caskets on her superstructure, this veteran armored cruiser, bringing home for triumphant burial the lads who fell at Vera Cruz, yesterday lay glistening and gleaming off the Battery.

Welcome the Dead
Back home! Joyous homecoming for the men of the Montana, after five months in the tropics and for the boys returning from Vera Cruz where their enlistment expired. But where their enlistment expired, the great ceremony being prepared on shore, is not for them. They will participate in the solemn welcome home—a welcome not to the living but to the silent boys, sleeping serenely under the flag for which they died. Everywhere about the big, sparkling ship, cleaned and polished and dressed in her best in honor of the occasion, was evidence of the solemnity of the duty to be performed by sailor and land lubber alike from the stoker in the hold to the president of the United States.

The Montana had done 2,050 miles at an average of 14 knots and a cost of 1,000 tons of coal and about $10,000 from the tropical waters of Mexico. Armed bluejackets pacing the superstructure whereon lay the nation's dead, and the officers and crew at attention on the quarterdeck, showed the sorrow-mission of the ship. The eventful trip began on Sunday, May 3, in the harbor of Vera Cruz, with one of the most impressive impromptu ceremonies in the United States navy's history. With flag at halfmast and her crew at attention on the quarterdeck, the Montana, after taking on her cargo of dead from the hospital ship Solace, steamed majestically through the Atlantic fleet, drawn up in two long and imposing lines.

Each Ship Drops Flag
As the Montana passed, each dreadnaught silently saluted by dipping her flag, which was left at halfmast. Mustered on deck was the entire crew of each warship and as the Montana passed by the ship's hands struck up mournful dirges, "The Dead March," from Saul, "Nearer My God, to Thee," and kindred airs. More than two thousand miles from home, after five months in the south, the departure of the Montana was highly dramatic to her officers and crew and to everyone else in the harbor.

On the trip up, covering seven days, the Montana was about every sort of a ship that the "log" of the navy records. With seventeen bodies on the superstructure she was a funeral ship. With six court martialled blue jackets from the fleet in the brig, coming home for dishonorable discharge she was a prison ship. With two insane men in her hospital ward, crazed by five months of heat in the tropics of Santo Domingo and Mexico, she was an asylum ship. And with sixty-nine men whose terms of enlistment had expired, the Montana was a passenger ship.

Storm Off Hatteras
On last Thursday night there came up a storm off Cape Hatteras—and Hatteras can serve up more varieties of storms than any other point on the Atlantic. The rain came down in torrents, and as the old Montana rolled and pitched and reared upon the waves, the flashing lightning, with its accompanying thunderous peals, revealed the flapping tarpaulins over the seventeen boxes in a picture that will never fade from the eyes of those who saw it.

Throughout the voyage the bodies of the dead were guarded day and night by two bluejackets with rifles and side arms. As the ship entered lower New York bay after anchoring Saturday night off Scotland Light, the caskets were draped with the stars and stripes and the guard was doubled. For the funeral services today the body bearers for each casket were detailed from the discharged men. They begged to be allowed to serve. They were men from the Atlantic fleet who saw actual service at Vera Cruz. Among them were some who actually caught the slain men in their arms as they fell.

Gets Daniels' Consent
The fact that these veterans of the taking of Vera Cruz were allowed to serve at the memorial of their comrades today was due entirely to the efforts of Commander Nulton. The department, which ordered the Montana to depart late today for Boston with four of the bodies, ordered the body bearers to be made up from the Montana's regular crew. Off the Battery yesterday, Nulton visited Secretary Daniels on the Mayflower and the secretary ordered the discharged men to bear the bodies of their comrades to the navy yard ceremonies. Slowly and majestically making her way up the harbor Sunday the Montana was silently saluted by the dipping of flags at Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth and Governor's Island. Every craft in the bay had flags at halfmast. No gun salutes were fired because it was Sunday.

Someone has discovered the startling fact that three-fourths of the people who buy seats for theatrical productions are women. Maybe that's why box office people go crazy.

MEXICAN MENACE.
Vera Cruz, now prominent in the news dispatches, has been a historical hot bed of yellow fever. In 1509 Spanish colonists attempted to settle there. Six hundred promptly died of the fever. At the end of fifteen months but sixty survived. Tampico is also a nursery for the plague.

From last available reports of the United States Public Health Service there were from February first to the twenty-fourth twenty-two cases and sixteen deaths in Tampico, and there was an epidemic at Vera Cruz. Two yellow fever experts have been ordered to Vera Cruz to act with officers of the army and navy.

Undoubtedly, one of the results of the American occupancy of Mexico will be the widening of territory which is free from the smouldering menace of yellow fever. Yellow fever was wiped out of Cuba and the southern part of the United States as a result of the Spanish American war. The disease has been constantly present in Cuba for two hundred years when we took charge. Every foreign visitor knew that he would contract it. One in four was certain to die of it. By fighting mosquitoes and screening against them yellow fever was eliminated.

Colonel Gorgas, the sanitarian of the Canal Zone (who deserves as much credit as anyone for the successful construction of the Panama Canal) says that "the next generation will look upon yellow fever parasites as we do on three-toed horses—as animals that existed in the past without any possibility of reappearing on the earth at any future time."

Wiping yellow fever out of the United States and Cuba was a simple but gigantic task. It required overcoming the indifference of the public. People of the south had so long been dying of yellow fever that it had become a habit. Our habits are difficult to uproot. In many instances inhabitants had to be forced, at that point of a bayonet, to submit to having their lives saved.

In our northern territory flies represent a disease source, comparable to a great extent with the mosquitoes in the warm zone. We of the north have tuberculosis, scarlet fever, typhoid, whooping cough, measles, etc. Any one or all of these could be eradicated were appropriate measures enforced with equal vigor and efficiency.

Perhaps our territory will be "invaded."
